

ABSTRACT

A method that includes serving a web page to a retailer, the web page including a two-dimensional grid of boxes in which the retailer can specify quantities of multiple retail items for purchase without being required to move to another web page between the specification of a quantity of one of the retail items and the specification of a quantity of another of the retail items.

20313180.doc